CAPTAIN JOSHUA GRAY

CHAPTER I

CAPTAIN JOSHUA GRAY

JOSHUA GRAY, son of Andrew and Phebe (Chandler) Gray and grandson of John and Susanna (Clark) Gray, was born January 22, 1743, in the town of North Yarmouth in the County of York, and Province of Massachusetts Bay—now County of Cumberland, State of Maine. He was baptized April 8, 1744, in the First Church, of which Rev. Nicholas Loring was the pastor. His mother died when he was less than two years old, and he was taken to live with his aunt, Mrs. Hannah Hallet. The journey from North Yarmouth to Old Yarmouth was made in a sailing vessel under the care of his uncle, Mr. Thomas Hallet. There is a well-known tradition in the family that he was sent away because his father feared the Indians would steal his little son, and it seems to have had some basis of truth, for at this period the Indians were very hostile toward the inhabitants of the town, who were often obliged to leave their dwellings to seek a common place of safety; husbands and fathers were killed, women and children taken into captivity, and the people obliged to carry firearms to and from their work, and while at worship.

Mr. Thomas Hallet, Gentleman, with whom Joshua Gray always lived, was a man of means and resided in an old mansion house in what is now known as Yarmouth Port. The title of Gentleman was not at that time common, and it indicates that he was a man of influence and position in the community. He was married four times; first to Sarah Hawes, who died January 31, 1719-20, in her 24th year; next to Hannah Gray, who, having no children of her own, reared her nephew Joshua as a son in her house; then to Desire Gorham, who died December 21, 1767, aged 56; and lastly to widow Mary (Gorham) Hedge, who survived him and was the mother of Mr. Gray's wife. Thomas Hallet's will was dated February 21, 1770, and probated May 4, 1772; after provision had been made for his wife and nephews, the remainder of his large estate was bequeathed to Joshua Gray, who was appointed sole executor. He also received from the estate of his father, Andrew Gray, two tracts of land in North Yarmouth; one containing fifty acres, being the southeasterly side or half of lot No. 9, in the hundred acre division next to Falmouth line, was sold by Mr. Gray and his wife Mary, for sixty pounds, to Adams and James Merrill, Jr., of Falmouth. He acknowledged the deed in North Yarmouth, Cumberland Co., June 20, 1774, before David Mitchell, Justice of the Peace. In 1783 he joined with his stepmother, Zeruah Gray, her children, and his own brothers and sister, in selling to Reuben Gage, mariner of North Yarmouth, thirteen-fourteenths of the estate of his half brother Ebenezer Gray, deceased, to which they were heirs.

In the local annals of the Revolution, Joshua Gray was a prominent figure. At its outbreak, when public meetings were being held in various towns on the Cape by the "Body of the People" to declare for their rights and liberties, and to prepare for action, he was among the leading patriots in enthusiasm, efficiency and service.

Hon. Charles F. Swift, in his Fourth of July oration delivered in 1859, stated that when in 1776 reinforcements were sought preparatory to taking possession of Dorchester Heights, Capt. Joshua Gray, who commanded the militia at Yarmouth, proceeded at once with a drummer to enlist volunteers for the service, and such was the enthusiasm and alacrity displayed, that the next day eighty-one men, one-half the effective force, were on their way to Washington's headquarters.

As the war advanced, and sentiment grew in favor of separation from England, the towns were requested to advise their representatives whether, in case Congress should declare the independence of the colonies, the people would sustain the act. One of the first replies, clear and decisive in its tone, came from Old Yarmouth. In a meeting held June 20, 1776, it was unanimously voted "that the inhabitants of the town of Yarmouth do declare a state of Independence of the King of Great Britain, agreeably to a late resolve of the General Court, if in case the wisdom of Congress should see proper to do it."

In Old Yarmouth, p. 157, it is stated that "David Thacher, Joshua Gray, Isaac Thacher and Wm Hallett, a committee on a new constitution of the State government, submitted a report, and the meeting 'consented to the revision.' "

The following is his Revolutionary War service taken from the "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolution," Vol. VI, pp. 776-777:

"Gray, Joshua, Yarmouth. Captain of a company of Minute-men which marched April 20, 1775, in response to the alarm of April 19, 1775, towards Marshfield; service 2 days; also, Captain; engaged July 1, 1775; discharged Dec. 31, 1775; service in defence of seacoast; roll dated Barnstable; also, Captain; list of officers of Col. Cary's regt. which was raised to reinforce the army until April —, 1776. Official record of a ballot by the House of Representatives, dated Jan. 31, 1776; said Gray chosen 1st Major, Col. Nathaniel Freeman's (1st Barnstable Co.) regt. of Mass. militia; appointment concurred in by council Feb. 2, 1776; reported commissioned Feb. 2, 1776; Joseph Dimmock reported as having been chosen in the room of said Gray, who declined to accept his appointment."

The following letters which passed between Capt. Joshua Gray and his wife during his absence in the war have lost none of their interest for their descendants of today, after a lapse of one hundred and thirty-seven years. Notwithstanding their incorrect spelling and quaint expressions, they teach a lesson of steadfast devotion and simple faith.

Joshua Gray

Joshua Gray married March 20, 1766, Mary Hedge, daughter of Thomas and Mary (Gorham) Hedge of Yarmouth; she was born December 5, 1745, and died August 3, 1822. Her father was a native of Yarmouth — born May 5, 1719, died June 9, 1764 — and the only son of Thomas Hedge and Hannah, daughter of Jacob and Rebecca (Weeks) Taylor.

Her mother was the daughter of James Gorham, Jr., and Mary Joyce, who were married September 29, 1707. She was the youngest of five children and was baptized June 19, 1719. James Gorham, Jr., was the eldest son of James and Hannah (Huckins) Gorham. James Gorham, Sr., was a man of prominence and wealth in his day; his father was the well-known Capt. John Gorham of Barnstable, and his mother, Desire, was a daughter of John Howland the Pilgrim.

Elisha Hedge, the father of Thomas, was a leading resident of Yarmouth, and his name frequently appears on the records. He had an early grant of land near Edward Sturgis, and was among those who paid the highest tax "towards the charges of the late war" [King Philip's]. He was constable in 1685. His wife's name was Mary, and although their marriage is not found on record, the conclusion has been reached through research that she was Edward Sturgis' daughter Mary who was baptized in Scituate, June 1, 1646. She died March 5, 1712-13, and her husband "m^r Elisha hedge departed ys Life on y^e 17th: day of May 1732: in or near y^e 92 year of his age."

Captain William Hedge, father of Elisha, and the emigrant ancestor of the family, was made freeman in 1634, and in 1637 removed with Mr. Edmund Freeman and his associates from Lynn, to begin a new settlement in Sandwich, where a division of meadow lands containing fourteen acres was allotted him. But in the list of those able to bear arms in the Colony of New Plymouth in 1643, he is enrolled as of Yarmouth, where he finally settled. In 1653 he was elected ensign, and repeatedly served as captain of the military company. He was also a member of the Grand Inquest and of the Council of War and one of the jurors appointed to lay out a road from Sandwich to Plymouth. His will, which was made June 30, and probated August 11, 1670, mentions sons Abraham. Elisha, William, John and Elemuel; daughters Sarah Matthews [wife of Thomas], Elizabeth Barnes [wife of Jonathan], Mary Sturgis [wife of Samuel], and Mercy Hedge.

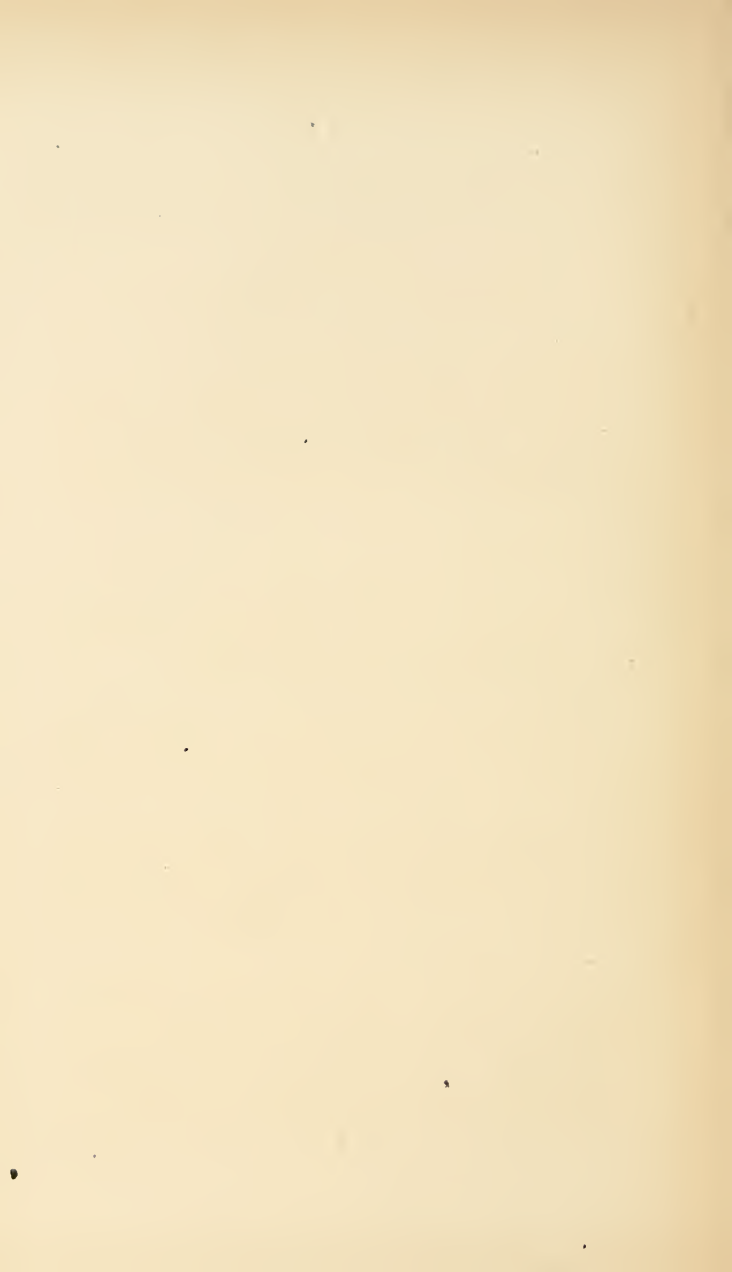

Joshua Gray, Gentleman, made his will October 28, 1790. It was probated May 26, 1791. He gives his residence as Yarmouth and, although he was only forty-seven years old, speaks of himself as advanced in years, indisposed in body, but of perfect mind and memory; he mentions his beloved wife Mary Gray, who is to have one-half of his estate, both real and personal, his three sons, one of whom, Thomas, is to be executor, and his five daughters; he adds that the three unmarried daughters are to have "bringing up out of my estate in such way and manner as my two daughters Hannah Sears and Sarah Thacher have been brought up and educated before they were married."

He died on a Fast Day, March 31, 1791, aged forty-eight years.

Captain and Mrs. Gray were the parents of nine children, all born in Yarmouth, eight of whom lived to maturity and became heads of families.

APPENDIX

MR. JOHN GRAY, SENIOR, OF YARMOUTH

Owing to the destruction of the early Yarmouth records by fire in 1676 and the loss later of the Barnstable County deeds, the earlier links in the ancestry of Capt. Joshua Gray of Yarmouth cannot now be determined with that absolute certainty with which his immediate progenitors are traced.

John Gray, the first of the name in Yarmouth, is mentioned in the Plymouth Colony Records as early as March 1, 1641-2, when Nicholas Simpkins brought suit against him in the Plymouth Court. The following year the records allude to him as "Mr." Gray. This omission of his baptismal name indicates that he was the only Gray then residing in Yarmouth, and that this was the fact is proved by reference to the list of "all Males that are able to beare Armes from XVI Years old to 60 years," dated August, 1643, in which the name of "John Gray" is found among the Yarmouth men, no other Gray being mentioned as of that place. He had received a grant of land at Yarmouth as early probably as 1642, for on May 14, 1648, "it is ordered, y^t the towne shall enjoy and posses the necke of land comonly called Nobscussett Necke, als Sasuet Necke, both vpland and medowe, notwithstanding all former graunts and sales of any part thereof exsepte what haue been graunted to M^r. Gray about 6 yeares sence, being 10 acars of vpland and 4 acars of meadowe lying there, betwext the great rocke and harbors mouth, the vpland and the creeke."

John Gray's marriage is not found upon the records, but there can be little question that his wife was a daughter of William Lumpkin of Yarmouth. Among Yarmouth births recorded at the Plymouth Court appear the following: "Benjamin the sonne of John Gray, about the 7th of December" 1648, and "William Gray, October the fift" 1650. Though no parent's name appears on this Yarmouth return for 1650, there seems to be no reason for supposing William Gray to have been other than the son of Mr. John Gray of Yarmouth. William Lumpkin, for whom he doubtless was named, made his will July 23, 1668, bequeathing to his grandchild, William Gray, the half of his estate, and mentioning his grandchildren, Elisha and Bethia Eldred. These last were the children of William Eldred of Yarmouth whose wife Ann appeared in the case brought against John Gray in the Plymouth Court, March 3, 1645-6. There are also indications that Mr. John Gray had other children than those named above and among them a son named John who was older than Benjamin.

October 4, 1664, "M^r John Gray, Seni^r, complained against Edward Sturgis, Juni^r, in an action of trespass on the case, to the damage of forty pounds, by his breaking of the rudder of his boat, and casting of her moreing in the docke, wherby shee hath bine bended and damni-fyed to the damage of forty pounds."

The existence of a John Gray, Jr., is distinctly implied by the wording of this record, and from the usual custom of the times, it is probable that he was the eldest son and namesake of his father. He died prior to February 10, 1673-4, which is the date an inventory of his estate was taken. One item of this inventory is significant, in that it shows that the two Johns* held property in common and that it was the senior John who survived, viz: "thes 9 cattle Mr. John Gray saith halfe of them is his."

Later in this same year (1674), is found the last mention of Mr. John Gray Senior as follows: "Given and granted to Mr. John Gray a parcel of broken marsh or creek thatch on the north side of a beach called grayes beach beginning at the east end of the said beach so extending westerly by the beach which bounds it on the south side and the sea on the north side & westerly by to stakes." Town Grants, p. 68.

* It should be noted that the generation numbers in the account of Joshua Gray's descendants include but one of these Johns.

How long after this date Mr. John Gray survived is not known. No record of his death or estate is found, and it well may be that he disposed of his property prior to his death. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, he is believed to be the progenitor of the Grays of Yarmouth, and the parent of the following children: John, who married Hannah Sturgis; Benjamin, of whom there is no further mention; William, who married Rebecca Dillingham and died in Harwich; Samuel, who was living at Yarmouth in 1670; Edward, who married first, Priscilla Sparrow, second, Melatiah Lewis, and was "absent beyond Sea" in 1708; and Mary, who married June 10, 1680, Benjamin Rider of Yarmouth.

JOHN AND HANNAH (STURGIS) GRAY OF YARMOUTH

The birth of John Gray the younger is not now to be found on Yarmouth records, and extensive research has not brought to light absolute proof of his parentage. The earliest evidence of his existence, as already stated in the previous chapter, is contained in the lawsuit Gray vs. Sturgis, 1664, where the plaintiff is called "M^r John Gray Seni^r." It seems to have escaped the notice of previous writers on this Gray family that there were two John Grays living in Yarmouth as early as 1664, and while there is no proof that they were father and son, every known fact concerning them leads to this conclusion. The statement of Mr. John Gray regarding the joint ownership of cattle, which has already been mentioned as being in the inventory of the younger man, seems to be best explained by the presumption of this relationship.

Aside from the appearance of his name a few times in the Plymouth Colony Records, and the inventory of his estate, no other mention of John Gray the younger has been found. March 8, 1670-1, "William Hedge, John Gray, and Edward Sturgis, for breakeing the Sabbath by sailing from Yarmouth to Boston on the Lords day, were fined each of them thirty shillings." These were all young men living in the same town and closely allied by marriage.

The inventory which follows is copied from the original document now in the Registry of Deeds at Plymouth. Vol. 3 of Wills, p. 109.

Taken upon oath this 1 of the 4th 1674 before Mee
John ffreeman Assistant.

March 4, 1673-4, the Court had ordered "In reference unto some particulars of the estate of John Gray, of Yarmouth, deceased, that Samuel Sturgis doe forthwith take them into his coustody, forasmuch as they are lyable to damage, and also to preserve them and improve them to the best advantage hee can, and that hee keep a faire accompt of his disposall thereof, untill a true inventory of the said estate be presented and proved, and libertie of adminnestration be graunted of the whole estate." Samuel Sturgis was a son of Edward Sturgis Sr. of Yarmouth and died before March 1, 1674-5, when administration on his estate was granted to his widow Mary. On this same date the Court decreed "In reference to the petition of Mistris Gray, of Yarmouth, respecting her low condition, and that it doth appeer that the estate is more indebted than it is able to satisfy, in respect to her present nessesitie," that "Mr. Hinckley sett out some few particulars, as beding, and some other nessesaries, to be disposed to her by him for her present releiffe, soe that it exceed not above 20 ^l"

The family name of Hannah, wife of John Gray of Yarmouth, is apparently disclosed in Col. John Gorham's "Wast Book," 1745, where it is stated that "Joseph Gorham maryed Sarah Sturgis Lived Yarmouth" and "Jabez Gorham maryd Widdow Gray Sister to Sary Sturgis moved to Bristoll" — these two Sturgis sisters were doubtless daughters of Edward and Elizabeth Sturgis of Yarmouth. He was among the first settlers and lived near the meeting house. He held office in the town at various times and was deputy to the General Court for four years.

It is a matter of record that the christian name of Jabez Gorham's wife was Hannah. He is known to have been a resident of Yarmouth at the time of his marriage and the only Hannah Gray found on the records there, is the one who was widow of John Gray (the younger) of Yarmouth, and whose name as "Hannath Graye" is on the rate lists of 1676, where it appears for the last time. Following her name on the tax list dated January, 1675-6, are the names of "Edward Sturgis Jr.," "Edward Sturgis Sr." and "Mary Sturgis."

Her marriage to Jabez Gorham, who was a son of Capt.

John and Desire (Howland) Gorham, is not of record, but their eldest child, Hannah, was born at Yarmouth December 23, 1677, and died at Bristol, R. I., March 25, 1682. The second daughter, Elizabeth, without doubt was also born at Yarmouth, and their other nine children were recorded at Bristol. Mr. Gorham died there in 1725, and his widow returned to Yarmouth the home of her childhood, as is shown by a deed dated September 7, 1732, and recorded in the Bristol County Registry, Vol. 21: p. 262, in which Hannah Gorham of Yarmouth, "sempstress" quitclaimed to Benjamin Gorham, for ten pounds, all such right and estate as she had to a certain tract of land in Bristol containing five acres. He was her son, and joint executor with her of his father's will. The deed was witnessed by Shubael Baxter, of Yarmouth, the husband of her daughter Elizabeth.

She died October 17, 1736, and was buried in the old graveyard at Harwich (now Brewster), in a place apparently reserved for her near the grave of John Gray of Harwich, who is believed to be her son. The footstone bearing her name is still standing less than a yard in front of the headstones which mark the graves of John Gray and his wife Susanna, both of whom she survived. That her burial in this spot was due to mere chance can scarcely be credited, and when taken in connection with the other known facts concerning her life, it leaves little room for doubt that Mrs. Hannah Gorham was the mother of John Gray of Harwich.

JOHN GRAY OF YARMOUTH AND HARWICH

From the dates on his gravestone, it is known that John Gray of Harwich was born in June, 1671, and the evidence elsewhere given points to Yarmouth as his birth-place, and to John and Hannah (Sturgis) Gray as his parents. The earliest mention of his name, to which attention is now for the first time directed, is found on the roll of a military company, commanded by Capt. John Gorham of Barnstable, which took part in the ill-fated Canada expedition of 1690 under Sir William Phips. A list of the sixty men in this company is given in a petition for a grant of land by Shubael Gorham and others June 12, 1735, and includes the names of Elisha Hedge and Joseph Sturgis who were also Yarmouth men, and relatives of John Gray.

The petition was favorably received and a grant was first laid out at Dunbarton, N. H., but this lapsed, and an equivalent grant of the township of Otisfield, Me., was made in its stead, June 15, 1771.

The town book of grants mentions "The bounds of the land belonging to John Gray as tis butted & bounded this 28 day of July 1692 by John Thacher & John Miller two of the land measurers for the town of Yarmouth." This was the month after he became of age, and the extent of the land, which included a house lot, meadow, and swamp, makes it probable that at least a part of this real estate was inherited from Mr. John Gray Sr. This is the last mention of his name in Yarmouth.

In 1694, John Gray was one of the petitioners for the incorporation of Harwich, and in 1695 he purchased a quarter interest in the corn mill on Satuckett River. In 1699 he acquired all the rights in Harwich lands belonging to William Clark of Plymouth, his wife's uncle, and by other investments and divisions from time to time, he became the owner of a very considerable estate in Harwich. He built his house in that part of the town which is now Brewster. He was a farmer and was also at one time largely engaged in whale fishery, which proved a profitable business.

June 22, 1701, his wife, Susanna Gray, was admitted to membership in the Harwich church, but while he was an attendant there, no record appears that he was ever a member. The church records, however, show the baptisms of the nine children of John and Susanna, who were born after this date.

In town affairs Mr. Gray was evidently a man of influence, and was chosen at various times for important offices. In 1703 he was elected constable, and two years later he was a member of a committee with Prentice Snow and Kenelm Winslow "to joyn with the selectmen in hiring a scoole master and in taking Care to settle and provide for him." He was also one of the five men appointed to determine the line between Harwich and Eastham which was then in controversy. In 1706 he became town treasurer and in 1720 he was chosen representative to the General Court with a compensation of five shillings a day.

When the new meeting house was erected in 1723, it is recorded that the "twenty-second place for a pew was chosen by Mr. John Gray," at the price of six pounds, ten shillings, which at the time of his death was appraised at twelve pounds. His inventory shows that he left an estate valued at about four thousand pounds, which was very large for those times. His sons Lot and Thomas were administrators of his estate, which apparently was not settled for fifteen years after his decease, as the following receipt from the Barnstable County probate records, Vol. 5: p. 259, indicates.

John Gray married Susanna Clark, but the date of the marriage, as well as the births of the seven oldest children, which may have been contained in the missing town records, are not now to be found. She was the daughter of Andrew and Mehitable (Scottow) Clark and was born March 12, 1674, at Boston. She died September 10, 1731, at Harwich. ANDREW GRAY OF HARWICH AND NORTH YARMOUTH, ME.

Andrew Gray, fourth son of John and Susanna (Clark) Gray, was born in Harwich September 29, 1707, and baptized by Rev. Nathaniel Stone February 8, 1708. Nothing is known of his early life beyond the fact that he grew to manhood in his native town and was living there in 1729. That his father had an early grant at North Yarmouth (valued at sixty pounds) may have been one reason why his son selected this town as his residence. The first mention of Andrew Gray's name is found in private records under date of December 22, 1732, when he signed a petition with others, to grant the request of Seth Mitchell to take up a piece of "Broken land that lyes near Stonny Brook."

Two year later, Andrew Gray, housewright, and Phebe, his wife, conveyed to Phinehas Jones, of Falmouth, one full right or proportionable part of or in a certain gore or triangular tract of land in North Yarmouth which was granted to the proprietors or settlers by the Great and General Court at their session held at Boston, Wednesday, May 29, 1734, that is to say, all that right or share unto the said tract of land belonging to the home lot in No. 104 laid out to Samson Salter in North Yarmouth.

This important town beautiful for situation, and forming a connecting link between Georgetown and the places westward upon the seaboard, was first settled in 1680, by descendants of the Pilgrims from Plymouth, and others who came from the shores of Cape Cod; but an attack from the Indians eight years later devastated the place and drove the settlers away. By 1715, however, they began to return, and in 1727 a meeting was held for the purpose of drawing lots, each proprietor being required to clear five acres and build a house within two years. The town was not again molested by the Indians until the beginning of the French and Indian War, when they became very troublesome, and especially hostile toward the settlement at North Yarmouth, and not until after 1756 did these depredations cease.

The first meeting for the election of officers in the town was held May 11, 1733, but not until the next year, when "a Legal Town meeting of the Inhabitants of North Yarmouth began and held at the meeting house on wednesday the 20 of March 1733-4," was the name of Andrew Gray first mentioned on the town records. At this meeting Samuel Seabury, Esq., was chosen moderator, Barnabas Seabury town clerk, and Andrew Gray one of the fence viewers. From this time forward until the close of his life he was almost constantly in office, and served the town as selectman and assessor as well as in various other capacities. He was treasurer of the First Parish in 1755, and one of a committee to settle the accounts of the proprietors of common and undivided lands. He was indeed a man of affairs, and original papers still preserved show in what an able manner he conducted the business of the town. His signature is clear and firm. He was received into the church March 31, 1745.

With Jonas Mason and Gilbert Winslow he signed the warrant for the annual town meeting the 4th day of March A. D. 1757 — the last one he ever attended. At the town meeting the next year it was voted "That one pound Lawf[ull] money Be allowed to the Heirs of Mr. Andrew Gray it being so much he payed for the Rates of Jonathan Chandler's Sloop."

The town record states that "Mr. Andrew Gray departed this Life December Nineteenth 1757." He was drowned while crossing Broad Cove on the ice in the evening of that day. His homestead was in this vicinity, near Prince's Point (now in the town of Yarmouth, Me.) as the following record of the bounds of the widow's dower indicates:

"To the Widow of Said Deceased Seventeen acres & Sixteen Rods of the Homestead as her full Right of Dower or Thirds being the Southwesterly part thereof, and is set off as follows, running North Easterly by the Road Nine Rods & Seven Links from the Easterly Corner of the Fence which stands between the Homestead of Sylvanus Prince & the Homestead of the Deceased. Thence North 42 Degs. West to broad Cove, thence by broad Cove to the Westerly End of the aforesd Fence between sd Prince & the Deceased and by Said Fence to the Easterly Corner thereof aforesd with one third of the dwelling House Barn & out Houses on said Homestead."

The administration on his estate was granted to his son, John Gray of North Yarmouth, February 14, 1758, and John Lewis was appointed guardian unto Rhoda, Joshua, and Ebenezer his three minor children. His inventory which may be of interest, as showing what were a man's possessions in those days, was returned in October of that year, and is recorded in York County Probate Records, Vol. 10: p. 23.
